The Stickney Memorial.

The laying of the corner-stone of the Stickney Memorial Chapel, corner of Fifth Stickney Memorial Chapel, corner of Fifth and P streets, took place yesterday in the presence of a large audience, including nearly all the Baptist clergymen in the District. Upon the site of the new chapel a stage was creeted, and an ampitheatre of seats raised to accommodate several hundred persons. The stage was occupied by Rev. S. H. Greene, Rev. J. W. M. Williams, of Baltimore, Wm. Stickney, Esq., and a number of other gentlemen. After the rendition by the Marine Band of "Nearer, my God, to Thee," the exercises were opened with the chorus "Jesus shall Reign," sung by the combined Sabbath schools. Rev. S. H. Greene then led in prayer, and invoked the Divine blessing upon the work to be inaugurated. Rev. J. prayer, and invoked the Divine blessing apon the work to be inaugurated. Rev. J. W. M. Professor Cook Looking Beath in the Face.

A representative of The Chiric called at 707 Eighth street northwest to-day to inquire after the condition of Professor Truman A. Cook, of Balm of Life fame, who was reported dying in a morning paper. The Chiric found Professor Cook a more shadow of his former self. He had wasted away greatly, and when addressed by the visitor stated that he expected death and was patiently waiting for the end.

"I may die in six or in twenty-four heurs," he said, "and then again I might live many days, but I am passing away gradually, and you can say in your paper that I fally realize my position and am ready to go."

Professor Cook at one time was one of the most prosperous and enterprising of Washington's business men, but within the past year or two became broken in spirit and health by domestic troubles and matters springing therefrom, all of which from time to time was ventilated in the newspapers.

The President Passes a Good Night.

The President had a good rest last night and his fever has considerably decreased since Tuesday, and all his symptoms are now favorable for his gradual recovery. In one of his waking spells during the night he asked Dr. Reyburn what the news was. The doctor replied that the Governors of the several States had it in view to issue, when he (the President) should be out of danger, proclamations appointing a general day of thanksgiving to God for the answered prayers of the Nation. The President seemed touched and gratified. In conversation with the President yesterday, Col. Rockwell made the remark to him that "The heart of the Nation was in his room."

The District Commissioners Must Pay Up.

To-day in the Circuit Court, Judge James ordered a mandamus to issue against the defendant in the case of the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company vs. the Commissioners of the District. In November, 1879, the plaintiff obtained a verdict against the defendant for work done and material furnished for $1,513.30 with intermaterial furnished for $1,513.30 with interest from May 1, 1874, and this verdict was affirmed by the General Term on appeal. The defendants refused to pay the judgment on the ground that plaintiffs owed defendants under special assessments for improvements on the avenue. That question is now pending in the General Term. Judge James held that the defendants had no right or discretion to withhold payment in the premises, and the mandamus orders the payment of the judgment with interest and costs of suit.

The costumes of many of the ladies were extremely beautiful.

The state barge, the Maria Wood, with the band of the Royal Artillery on board, was anchored off the Star and Garter. The criticisms pronounced upon the Cornell crew and their boat before and during the race were not at all favorable. Their peculiar shapel oars, like razor blades, were not at all admired, and what little betting there was was strongly against them. In tossing for places the Cornell crew had the misfortune to be compelled to take the worst station, having drawn the Sarry side of the river. The London crew took the middle of the stream, and the Thames Rowing Club the middle seaside. The water was very high, the tide being full. The three crews made a good run as far as opposite the soap works, the Cornell crew keeping close behind the Thames' boat.

The Strking Coopers Going to Work—What an Employer Says.

Nearly all the striking coopers have returned to their work at the rates—ten cents per barrel—proposed by the bosses. Mr. Jarboe, whose men were on a strike for a few days, in conversation with a Caitic reporter this morning, said he thought the press had done him an injustice in publishing what he termed a "hasty account" of the strike. He said the papers alleged that at the old rates, ten cents per barrel, the men would only make irom $5 to $7 per week, whereas any cooper who is an average workman can earn from $8 to $10 per week. Mr. Jarboe, continuing, said: "The coopers who were at work for me have nearly all returned to their labors, considering my offer of ten cents per barrel with work all the year round far better than twelve cents with only five or six month's work in the year. Good active men," said Jarboe, "can make from $8 to $10 per week, which, with constant work, will compare favorably with the carnings of other mechanics."
